Speaking Activity

Remember, the setting of the story is when and where it takes place. Some stories may convey this to you directly, but some do not, and you may need to make inferences using your knowledge and what the story does tell you.

Pick a story that you know and find pictures on Google images that help represent the setting. Copy and paste them into a word document (make a collage) and explain why you've chosen the pictures to your ELA teacher.

Reading Activity

Career clusters are groups of careers that share common skills or themes. Click here to take a quiz that might offer you some insight into what career cluster might be right for you.

Writing Activity

Think about an event in your life that might make a good film, then story board it! Filmmakers sometimes use story boards to plan their movies. Click here to use Story Board That, an online storyboard creator.
